THE

THE RAPE OF LVCRECE.

1 The praising of Lucrece as chast, vertuous, and beautifull, maketh Tarquin enamored.

FRom the besieged Ardea all in post,
Borne by the trustlesse wings of false desire,
Lust-breathed Tarquin leaues the Roman
And to Colatium beares the lightlesse fire, (host,
Which in pale embers hid, lurkes to aspire
And girdle with imbracing flames the wast,
Of Colatines faire loue, Lucrece the chast.

Haply that name of chast, vnhaply set
This bateleſſe edge on his keene appetite:
When Colatine vnwisely did not let
To praise the cleere vnmatched red and white,
Which triumpht in that skie of his delight,
Where mortall star as bright as heauens beauties,
With pure aspects did him peculiar duties.

For he the night before in Tarquins tent,
Vnlockt the treasure of his happy state:
What priceleſſe wealth the heauens had him lent
In the possession of his beauteous mate,
Reckoning his fortune at so high a rate
That Kings might be espoused to more fame:
But King nor Prince to such a peereleſſe dame.

O happinesse enioyed but of a few,
And if possest, as soone decayde and done:
As if the *morning*s siluer melting dew,
Against the golden splendor of the Sunne,
A date expir'd: and cancel'd ere begun.
Honor and beauty in the owners armes,
